"Great place! I was held there for over 5 days and got away with 1 million Euros. Not a bad deal".

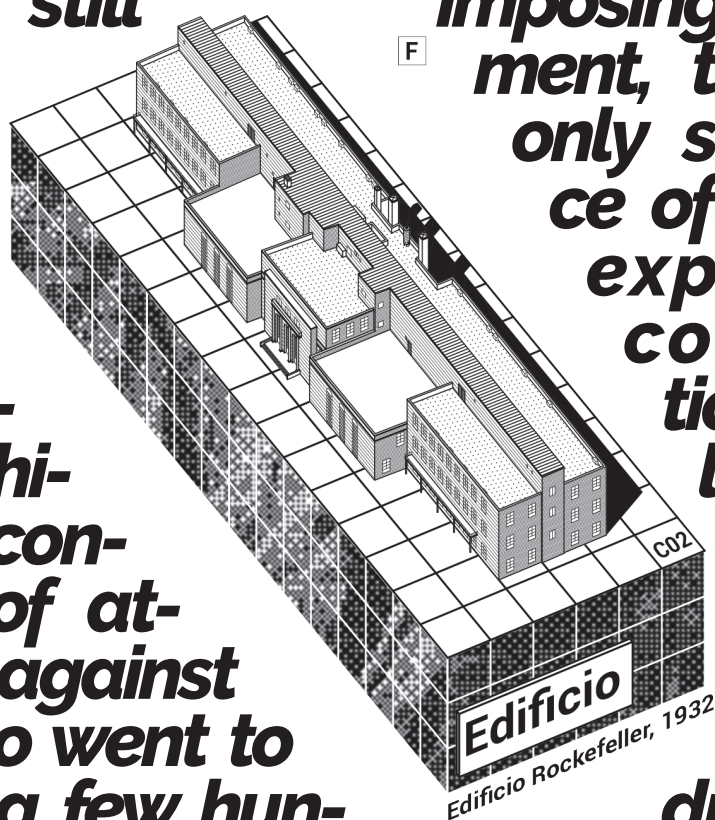

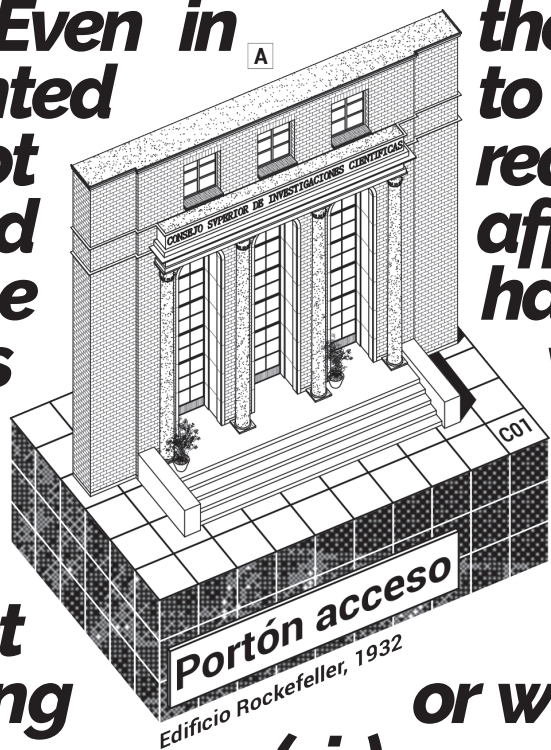

"Watchers unprepared !!!!"

It is not pleasant to be mistreated in a place where education and information should prevail. In a public institution focused on scientific research and teaching there is no room for rudeness, abuse or discrimination. But this is not what we can perceive in Spain! When we arrived at the complex (where the Netflixiana fame building is located) (Netflix - La Serie de Papel) we came across an open gate, a security officer at the entrance, who did not oppose any difficulty for our access.

signs or notices indicating that a visitation would be suspended. We walked towards the main entrance, respecting the notices of prohibition of registration of photographs. As we walked along the sidewalk that led to the main entrance, we were called from a distance by staff from the entrance guard, the lady who had not spoken before, and now also a lord. I informed them that we had entered since other people had entered. (I suspected this time of discriminatory treatment). And they were also tourists. The said gentleman began an escalation of the tone of voice, beginning to rage. Even in the face of justifications to me, this gentleman did not reduce his tone of voice and affirmed that tourists had no rights and that was his service and he how it worked. In other words, an employee (man) does not work, anyone enter without or warnings and the other people thinking that they are doing the work. While leaving, still imposing great embarrassment, the dialogue was by the presence of a third explained coherent situation people the other (official) continued with his saga of attacking and railing against few tourists who went to Madrid just leave a few hundred euros to promote tourism in the city.
